Editorial Notes by Rich Prange

August Ouch

Not to start out whining but, August arrived way too fast. With isolation, distancing and mucho rain days, many of us have stayed right on top of our summer projects. What happened to our day light hours?

Let me cover a little business for our news letter. Are there any items in the Buy Trade Sell column that are no longer valid? No AirVenture 2020, no Red Barn sales, do you have any aviation stuff that you would have sold there? Consider the Buy Trade Sell column in this newsletter.

Do you have any photos appropriate for the news letter? And, the same question for flying adventures. This is not Pulitzer or Peabody Award time, but if you had a flight that was a bit outside your envelope or had a testy situation that challenged your skill level, write it up and submit it.

The Right Stuff

Yes, this is a title for a 1983 movie depicting the courage, bravery and technology of Project Mercury; Navy, Marine, and AF pilots with the right stuff. There is a whole "nuther" layer of everyday citizens in our communities made of the Right Stuff. There are obvious heroes working tirelessly to keep us alive and healthy – thank you. We also thank workers and support people at the trench level, who keep our systems moving and reliable. Our politicians should do as well.

Invasion Stripes

There is an Avid Flyer Mod C+ located in hangar #26 in Merrill related to a War Bird L-16, located at Circle K in Irma. The relationship is in stripe only, invasion stripes. The builder of the Avid Flyer, early on, saw a similarity to the L-16 and thought it was a cool look. This builder didn't dig very deep, but that is another story.

At AirVenture, you can't miss this same paint scheme on many War Birds representing the D-day assault, June 1944. What was the function of the two alternating black and white stripes? Yup, painting top and bottom surfaces of the wings of aircraft supporting the Normandy Invasion helped identify allied Friendlies in flight.

Transponder signal identification was available at the time of the invasion but, because of the overwhelming number of aircraft, not all airplanes could be equipped. Black and white stripes proved to be most practical.

You Go Girl

Robina Asti, a 99- year-old woman, broke two Guinness records as the oldest active pilot and flight instructor. She gave her final flight lesson on a recent Sunday at Riverside Municipal airport, CA.

Keep your needle in the green.
