Peter is a builder by trade and has been a pilot since 2006. His fascination with experimental planes began back then. He was watching planes landing at Norwood while waiting for a lesson. A middle-aged gentleman rode onto the ramp with his motorcycle and parked right next to a single seat low wing. (maybe an RV) He went right from his bike to the plane, preflighted, and took off. Peter asked around and found it was an experimental that the pilot had built himself. It was then that Peter decided that was the path for him. Peter ordered his kit in 2006, completed it in 2018 and finished his 40 hours in mid-2020. Peter will be giving this presentation from his hanger in Taunton where he thoroughly enjoys flying his Zenair 601.
