- EAA Chapter 18 February Meeting This month's program will be on crop dusting. Don't try this at home folks. Come on out and hear about this exciting profession. Tuesday March 26th at 7:30 PM at the Timmerman CAP hanger.
- FAA Announces 149 ATC Tower Closures On Friday March 22, the FAA listed all the towers to be closed starting April 7th. The list includes 8 towers in Wisconsin including: Mosinee, Eau Claire, Kenosha, Janesville, La Crosse, Milwaukee Timmerman, Oshkosh and Waukesha. Sean Elliott, EAA's vice president of advocacy and safety said Friday "While we're disappointed to learn of the Wittman tower closure, it's important for everyone to understand that air traffic operations during and surrounding AirVenture will not be adversely affected."

- Who didn't get the news about February's meeting? The snow storm last month put the kibosh on last month's chapter meeting. Jeff got the word out as best he could while sitting in the middle of a snow induced traffic jam. Going through his phones contact list, making as many calls as he could, he had us all do the same. Hopefully we got the word out to everyone in time. Apologies to anyone who didn't get the news and showed up anyway. We'll be asking for a briefing of how the meeting went. So, obviously, the board and chapter meeting minutes will be a little shorter than usual.

PRESIDENT'S CORNER- JEFF POINT

President's Rant- March 2013

Welcome to the January Flypaper! Wait, what? It's not January!?! What do you mean? It's cold and snowing with no end in sight, and that sure sounds like January to me! OK, a quick glimpse at the calendar (not to mention all your confused faces) lets me know that this is in fact March, and spring is, at least in theory, right around the corner. So, in that case, welcome to the March Flypaper!

As is our annual custom, my bride and I will be jetting off to sunny Phoenix AZ in a couple of days for a week of sunshine and baseball, which is quite what the doctor ordered after this miserably long winter. This year we are making the trip a little earlier than usual, which means we will be back in time for the March chapter meeting. The program for March will be on crop dusting, given by an experienced purveyor of the craft. Just the thought of crops is enough to make one think of warmer weather, so come on out and share in the fun.

It is difficult to believe it, but this coming up Friday, March the 15th, is the 9th birthday of the Spruce Moose. My baby turns 10 next year, which means that in six short years I'll have an airplane old enough to drive! It also means, among other milestones, that I've been flying the Moose for about twice as long as it took me to build it. I suddenly feel old, which might explain why Arizona seems so appealing...

While baby #1 is getting on towards the teenage years, baby #2 is still in the slow gestation process. Last month I told you about getting a mysterious package from the Big Brown Santa. It measured 8 inches tall, 10 inches wide and seventeen feet long. Can anybody guess what that was? No, it wasn't my tax return, nor was it our chapter renewal documents from

of a sudden,
whammo!”*

EAA; it was a set of wing spars! Even though they shipped via UPS wrapped in cardboard, they arrived in remarkably good shape, as close inspection revealed. I once heard Fred describe the arrival of his wings spars as “the most beautiful pieces of wood that I ever laid eyes on,” and I now know what he means. These pieces of straight grain spruce are absolutely spectacular and free of any flaws. It’s no wonder that these four pieces of prime lumber set me back four figures, but I have a great deal of confidence in their quality, and having that level of confidence in the main structural piece of your airplane is hard to put a price tag on.

Having the spars in hand allowed me to tackle a couple of tasks that I had been putting off, such as fabricating the fuselage attach brackets. Finally, on March the 4th, it was time to start assembling the wing. Those of you who have built airplanes know that visible progress is often achieved in fits and starts. You can spend six months working on it and it doesn’t look any more like an airplane than it did six months ago. Then, all of a sudden, whammo! In the space of a day or so, your pile of parts has morphed into an airplane. March 4th was one of those days, as I built a jig to hold the spars and began stringing the ribs onto them. By the end of the day, I had what looked for all the world like an airplane wing! It still needed a lot of work, but it looked like a wing! That sort of visible progress is invaluable in keeping the motivation going on a long term project like this, and all of you builders know just what I mean.

Until next month, keep your airspeed up and your eye on the ball.

FAA Announces 149 ATC Tower Closures

In Winnebago County, local officials are discussing options to continue year-round tower service at Wittman, which has had air traffic control facilities for a half-century. "We will work with the airports and the operators to ensure the procedures are in place to maintain the high level of safety at non-towered airports," said FAA Administrator Michael Huerfano in a news release announcing the tower closures Friday afternoon.

Waukesha is looking into alternate funding to keep the tower open also. Kurt Stanich, Waukesha County Airport Manager stated in a special Waukesha County Newsletter email, "Airport management and county officials are continuing to explore contingency options to keep the tower open. We will, of course, let you know if we are able to find a solution. We also ask you to join us in supporting our air traffic controllers, who have served us so well. We truly appreciate their dedication to Waukesha County Airport and the aviation community." Kurt also said "We are likely to see less corporate traffic at the airport as corporate flight departments and charter/fractional operations evaluate safety options along their routes. All other operations should continue as usual, however, we ask that all airport businesses keep us informed of any concerns they may have as these changes become a reality."

AOPA President Craig Fuller said in a posting on their website "AOPA is extremely disappointed that the Federal Aviation Administration has taken the unnecessary and unprecedented step of closing a third of the nation's 515 air traffic control towers, some of them newly built at a cost of millions of taxpayer dollars. This is no time for politics. These towers were put into operation to ensure aviation safety. By closing them, the same organization responsible for ensuring the safety of our skies is compromising that safety."

One of the towers slated for closure is at Lakeland Linder Regional Airport in Lakeland, Fla., home to Sun 'n Fun. The show, often considered a spring break for pilots, is scheduled to start April 8, one day after contract towers across the country will begin closing. Sun 'n Fun President John "Lites" Leenhouts issued a statement shortly after the FAA released its lists of cuts, stating that FAA air traffic controllers would ensure "safe and expeditious handling of all arrivals and departures at Lakeland Linder Airport" during the show, April 8 through 15.

A Rant From the Treasurer/Membership Guy

Just a couple of reminders: January was the time to pay your dues for 2013. Many have already paid but many still owe. Chris Esselstyn will be collecting dues at the February, March and April meetings while I am covering from the Wisconsin cold weather in Albuquerque. Please help us and pay up!

The second item I would like to cover is people who are WAY PAST DUE! We have 16 members on the books who are 3-6 years past due. Many of these people have not attended meetings for a long time and are probably no longer interested or have moved from the area. At the last board meeting this issue was reviewed and the following decision was made: If any of the 16 are still interested in being members they must pay the $5 new member fee along with the 2013 dues and they will be kept on the books. If they choose not to do that by the end of March 2013 they will be dropped from the roster and the news letter. The list of 16 is below. If you see any of them please tell them about this once in a lifetime opportunity.

Lets face it ,this is the lowest cost , $10/year, best run organization in the EAA. There is no excuse for missing dues payments.

End of rant.

Ken
