What's been going on:

We had a nice night for our July meeting and a couple of us flew in. The sunset was spectacular and we did a little flying after the meeting to enjoy it. The meeting attendance has been a little down which is to be expected during these COVID-19 times. It is nice to see a few faces and if you haven't been able to attend, we hope to see you when this thing is over. Everyone who has attended has been great at practicing safe social distancing and it is appreciated. When in attendance we should follow the highest guidelines both because of our member age demographic and to make even the most careful member feel comfortable.

My flying has been minimal and I have heard of little activity from the group. The flying I have done has been interesting. Flying with a mask presents a whole new set of issues with the headset, fogging glasses and talking through material to a microphone.

The Young Eagles road side signs that we spoke about at the meeting are being printed and I hope to be able to bring one to the meeting. I gave some basic information for content and a couple logos and they sent back a proof that looked great. These will be used to boost public awareness of our Young Eagles events when we are able to do them again and are being paid for by our Young Eagles stipend.

UPCOMING:

The flying calendars are all empty. We do not have any events on the horizon. We have talked about a movie night and a hangar build visit but we will have to see if they work out. Our meetings will have to be it for the foreseeable future.

With all of this going on it is apparent that many outlets have stepped up their online content. When I went to the Social Flight calendar it was full of online line events for instance. Your probably tired of the computer but it is a good time to learn something new. EAA and AOPA have a ton of material and many other aviation Youtubers have posted more content. I have started the lesson part of instrument flying and hope to start that training soon. I figure this will also give me some incentive to get out and do some flying also. See you all at the July 25th meeting. Hopefully we will have nice weather again for flying in.

Here we are in August already and the days are getting shorter. I am back at work full time and not working from home anymore. I haven't got much flying in, but lots of boating and camping in the Adirondacks. One day boating up in the Sacandaga River we had a chance to see a Maule seaplane land, that was pretty cool and I snapped this pic.

Well we are coming up on another meeting and I hope to see you all there. I missed the last meeting, due to work and other issues and I missed seeing you folks. 2020 has been a tough year for flying but I'm sure we can ride out this storm and have a great 2021. Come out if you can if only just to chat for a bit. See you all soon!
