Northeast Side Taildraggers R/C Aviation Club

Meet NeST, the Northeast Side Taildraggers! We're the radio control model aviation club in Noblesville. We fly electric and liquid fuel airplanes, jets, gliders, helicopters and drones at our field.

There's quite a bit of cross-over interest with full-scale aviation in our club. Many members are, or have been, or would like to become full-scale pilots. We participate in community events such as Wings Over Indy, EAA fly-ins and the Conner Prairie Balloon Festival, and we host events at our field as well.

Since 2011 we've been offering help and advice in all aspects of model aviation, including selection and setup of your first model, and hands-on flight training. For Young Eagles we also offer one free year of NeST club membership.

Join our Facebook page for updated info on our activities: <https://www.facebook.com/groups/northeastsidetaildraggers/>

Email us at info@nest-rc.org for training, membership and other club details.

Let us know if you have any questions, and we hope to hear from you soon!

The REPORTER

Reporter Publisher Stu Clampitt seems to be stuck in the 1920s, but he's hoping his recent flight on a 1928 Ford Tri-Motor 5-AT has brought him back to the present. Early this month Clampitt found a 1922 Ford Model T parked behind him in a small town in west-central Indiana. On Oct. 15 and 16, he took part in the Nickel Plate Express Murder Mystery Ride, a 1920s-themed experience. Then on Thursday, Oct. 20, he and photographer Nik Roberts took to the skies over Fishers in one of the first mass-produced airliners the world has ever known. Thanks to the Experimental Aircraft Association (EAA), a plane flown by both Amelia Earhart and Charles Lindbergh is flying out of the Indianapolis Metro Airport, 9913 Willow View Road, Fishers, through Sunday, Oct. 23. According to EAA Chapter 67 President Nick Boland, the Ford came to Fishers because "EAA national called me and asked if we would be interested in sponsoring it. We did that 13 years ago and we thought it would be a good opportunity to have a historic aircraft here. A lot of what we try to do is get the community interested in aviation. Something like this fits that perfectly." See Airplane! . . . Page 3

Tired of toeing the line, he gets his toes painted

I painted my toenails last month. Technically, I didn't paint them. A licensed pedicurist did. It's best to leave the painting to the professionals ... walls ... cars ... and now, toes. I'm still processing the paint job. No regrets, mind you. Just mentally sorting out why I did what I did.

For starters, it seemed like a fun thing to do, something different, with my wife, Brynne, on her 50th birthday.

We sat beside each other in matching massage chairs while our personal pedicurists trimmed our toenails, cut our cuticles, descaled our scales, and buffed the bottoms of our feet, the latter tickling me to the point that I had to cover my mouth to stifle an embarrassing, snorty cackle. Our pedicurists combatted our calluses, soaked our feet in sea salt, applied lotion to our legs, and massaged them. A heavenly lavender scent enveloped us. Hot towel wraps soothed our calves. Then my pedicurist popped the BIG QUESTION, the one I knew was coming when we entered the spa: "What color toenail polish would you like?" As far as pedicures go, this wasn't, as they say, my first rodeo. It was my second rodeo. Last winter, I went with Brynne for our first-ever couple's pedicure, which also marked my first pedicure ever. It was a bold

We had a good crew and lots of volunteers.

George S. and Sierra C. arrive in style.

Our pilot, Taylor Oliver, was fun to fly with.

Many of us, including Annika, had an opportunity of a lifetime flying the Ford.

And some miscellaneous pictures.

A balloon lands at Sheridan! Jodie will be doing a presentation about ballooning in an upcoming meeting.

Allan starts the engine on the Citabria for the first time after many years of work. Soon it will be flying.
