EAA Chapter 732 April Gathering

A Message from our Chapter
President
Rick McKinney

Brady Terry gave a great presentation on avionics at our last meeting. He is a super resource to have in NW AR. This Sunday we will meet at Huntsville H34 at the Coger's hangar. We will have hamburgers so bring a side dish or desert. 1:00 meet to eat.

While at the Coger's hangar Gary Moore will show us his RV7 project.

Meeting at 2:00.
Hopefully someone who attended the spring fly in at Byrd's will tell us about that event.

See you at the airport.

Rick

There will be a limited number of 12 spaces for students between the ages of 12-16 that might be interested in attending the Sonex Fly-In and participating in a build and explore morning of fun aviation activities. We would like to make the event open first to EAA members who might have children, grandchildren, friends or neighbors to whom they would like to invite to the event. The event is free for the children and will be from 9:00-noon.

Likewise if you would like to offer your talent to volunteer that morning and you have completed the Young Eagle background check we promise you will be filled with a great satisfaction that you are sharing your love of aviation with the future of aviation!

Interested? Know a young person who would like to attend?

FAA revokes licenses of two pilots who attempted plane swap stunt!

This story was originally published by Ashton McIntyre of KSBY in San Luis Obispo, California.

Posted at 7:00 PM, May 13, 2022 and last updated 8:00 PM, May 13, 2022

The Federal Aviation Administration revoked the licenses of two pilots following a failed mid-air stunt last month in Arizona. News reported that FAA officials called the actions of pilots Luke Aikins and Andy Farrington, "careless" and "reckless."

The two cousins performed the stunt during an event that was live-streamed by Red Bull and Hulu last month.

The pair attempted to send their Cessna 182 planes into synchronized nosedives at 14,000 feet before jumping out to switch aircrafts in mid-air. During the stunt however, one of the planes spiraled out of control and crashed. No one was injured. Aikins was able to get into the aircraft while Farrington was forced to parachute.

In the days following the stunt, Aikins admitted that his request to the FAA to perform the stunt had been denied and he went ahead with it anyway. Aikins was also fined $4,932, according to NBC.

The Central Coast served as a training ground for the two pilots. Prior to the stunt, their flight practices took off from both the San Luis Obispo and Oceano airports

HOW TO PLANE SWAP

LUKE AIKINS AND ANDY FARRINGTON TAKE TO THE SKIES FOR A PHYSICS-DEFYING FEAT, TEN YEARS IN THE MAKING

1 ASCEND
Two skydivers will each pilot their own aircraft to an altitude of 14,000 ft / 4,000m

2 NOSEDIVE
Engaging the air brakes & vertical autopilot, they cut the engines and enter a nosedive, both planes pointed directly at the ground

3 SWAP
Jumping out leaving the planes unmanned, the two cross each other mid-air

4 RECOVER
The duo enter the opposite planes, restarting the engines at 3,000 ft / 900m to complete the world's first aviation feat

LIVE EXCLUSIVELY ON APRIL 24 AT 7:00 P.M. ET | 00:00 BST A.M. 9:00 AEST A.M. | 11:00 A.M. NZST
