Topic: Oil Consumption Concerns

On Monday September 2, 2024 at 18:30 Central Daylight Time

Select Number: GL13131998

Location:

Aviation Heritage Center of Wisconsin

N6191 Resource Dr

Sheboygan Falls, WI 53085

Description:

IFR Scenario presented by Tony Kolar CFII, Volunteer FAA Safety Representative

Guest instrument pilots and students welcome.

This seminar is not meant as a lecture but rather an open discussion forum using real world scenarios to increase your level of safety in the IFR environment such as this scenario: Oil Consumption Concerns. Safe instrument flying is a matter of mitigating risk, personal minimums and standard operating procedures. If you have and use sound judgement, establish personal minimums and good procedures, you can enjoy a long and successful career of instrument flying. The Sheboygan Falls (WI) EAA 766 IMC Club provides organized "hangar flying" focused on building proficiency in instrument flying. An instrument rating is not required for attendance.

This seminar has been scheduled and airmen have been notified.

In-flight Weather Resources

The 21st Century has brought an unprecedented wealth of information to general aviation cockpits. Near real-time graphical and textual weather products contribute greatly to pilot situational awareness and decision-making. However, pilots must understand the capabilities and limitations of the equipment and the information it provides.

Regulations require that during pre-flight planning, pilots need to gather all pertinent information concerning each flight. In the past, this would require a pilot to call to a Flight Service Station (FSS) to acquire the needed data from a Briefer; however, today this information can be gathered using automated weather information resources. Pilots can still contact a FSS, but are highly encouraged to conduct a self-briefing before the call to ensure they have a good idea and understanding of weather conditions before speaking with a Briefer.

Pilots are encouraged to use the same list of elements for their preflight self-briefing that a FSS uses for a standard weather briefing. This list assists pilots in complying with 14 CFR section 91.103, regardless of the automated weather resource they use to gather the information.

1) Adverse Conditions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Weather advisories (SIGMETs, AIRMETs, Convective SIGMETs, Center Weather Advisories, Aviation Watch Notification Messages) NOTAMs (airport/runway closures, TFRs, etc.) IFR conditions, low-level windshear, thunderstorms, reported icing, frontal zones
2) Synopsis	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Weather systems and/or air masses
3) Current Conditions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Current observations (e.g., METARs, PIREPs) for departure, en route, and destination Satellite and radar imagery
4) Forecast Conditions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Forecast information (departure, en route, and destination)
5) Winds Aloft	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Winds aloft forecast (interpolate between levels and stations) Temperature at proposed altitude
6) Notices to Airmen (NOTAM)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Departure, en route, and destination
7) Restricted or Special Use Airspace	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Prohibited Areas P-40, P-56, and the Special Flight Rules Area (SFRA) for Washington, DC
8) ATC Delays	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ATC delays and/or flow control advisories
